

Ownership of media outlets should be closely regulated and restricted. Further consolidation erodes the free flow of information. The exercise of democratic responsibilities such as voting and freedom of speech depend on access to information. Information can not be allowed to reside with the few but with the many.

Joe Tripi